And the winners are...

The forecast said it would clear before 1 PM, but boy was that wrong! It started sprinkling around noon, but by the time the parade stepped off, it was raining.

Thanks to all the dedicated participants for hanging in there, celebrating the 40th anniversary of this cherished Brewster event! And thanks to the many people who lined the street to watch the parade pass by. At a time when there is so much change happening in the world, it's nice to have something consistent to hang on to!

Thanks to our parade judges this year: Amy Henderson, Brewster Conservation Trust, and Liz Perry and Carl Alstrom, Blue Jacket Studio. They had the difficult job of reviewing all of the entrees and deciding who the winners would be!

Best in Show: Brewster Elementary Schools

This entry included the band from the Music Department followed by a float created by the Art Department. It represented both Eddy and Stony Brook schools!

Most Original: Brewster Ladies' Library

Most Humorous: Brewster Residents for Affordable Housing and Conservation

Best Interpretation of Theme: Latham Centers

Most Creative: Brewster Ponds Coalition
